Fr. Principal's Message

IX Graduation Day

This day will remain in the hearts of the graduating students as a day to remember, a day when they realize that after long years of toil, they are graduating. A lot of hard work has gone into making this day a reality. It is also the fruit of the sweat and pain of many parents who had to earn that extra money to send their child to college. But today they also cherish this moment with pride as their child graduates from St. Claret College.

These 285 graduates are ready to face the world. They are trained to take up challenges and I believe they are also well-equipped to handle pressure. I find in the eyes of these graduates a sense of achievement and a hope that the future will be bright for them. I can sense excitement in the faces of these young graduates as they plunge into the world to be architects of a new India. They are with a sense of fulfillment as they bid adieu to their alma mater. And we are as excited as many of you are, because we, the members of management, faculty and staff, had some role to play in your lives. I wish you, the young graduates, the very best in your professional and personal life.

'Dare to dream' that is the theme of this graduation day. Dream not just those dreams that are easy to achieve, but dream big. One day you will be one among the great if you are ready to follow your dream. Paulo Coelho says in his book 'The Alchemist', "And, when you want something, the entire universe conspires in helping you to achieve it." What you need to know for sure is what is it that you want to have. If you want to have only a very ordinary life, the universe will conspire to help you to achieve that. If you want to achieve something which you and many others believe is beyond your reach, still the universe will conspire to help you to achieve it. Now what can come in between your dream and achieving it? "There is only one thing that makes a dream impossible to achieve: the fear of failure." What I wish for you as you graduate today is that let nothing, yes, nothing come in between you and your dreams, no matter how wild they may be. You can be sure of the support the management and faculty of this college will continue to extend to you in achieving your dream.

You need to consider yourself privileged to be able to attend college and graduate. According to a study conducted in August 2015, only 8.15% of Indian students reach the level of graduation. So you are more privileged than about 91 % of the students of India who do not have the opportunity to go to a college and pursue education.

Now that you get into the world either as members of the working population or as students of post graduation, your future lies in your hands. There is little that others can contribute to your growth and success. It is here that the dreams you dream have a great significance. As our former President late A.P.J. Abdul Kalam says in his book, 'Wings of Fire': "Dream is not that which you see while sleeping, it is something that does not let you sleep." I want you to pursue those dreams that do not let you sleep and let no forces prevent you from achieving those dreams.

Dear graduates, most of you are placed in reputed companies through the college placement cell. A good number of you have also opted to pursue your higher education. We want you to take along with you the values and principles for which St. Claret College stands and be on the side of justice and truth. It is easy to be one among the crowd, but remember a crowd does not have a name, designation or individuality. What we expect from you graduates is that you remain who you are with the abilities and talents God has given you, work to your maximum potential and unleash the energy you have for your future and for the future of India. Then you will be part of a group or you will be at the top of a pyramid, where you have a name, designation and individuality. I am dreaming of a day when most of you become known names in the state and nation at large. Dear parents, I would like to thank you for having faith in this institution. You trusted us to take care of your children. We hope we have not let you down. I hope and pray that you continue to be the ambassadors of this institution for many more years to come.

Dear Claretines, I wish you all the best. Thank you all for these eventful three years that you have spent with us. I firmly believe that you will continue to dream big and bring accolades to your family and your alma mater. God bless.

- Rev. Dr. Sabu George, CMF
