DEPARTMENT OF HUMANITIES

Annual Report 2020-2021

The department of Humanities Established with the inception of the college in 2005, the department subsumes a broad range of socially relevant disciplines –Psychology, English, Sociology, Journalism, Economics and Political Science – addressing the demands and issues of the times. The department ensure an intellectually stimulating environment by emulating the idea of teachers as learning facilitators, knowledge guide and co-learners with students. With only 11 students in the academic year 2005-06, the department has grown leaps and bounds with considerable growth in the student strength over the years. The department organises regular talks, guest lectures, workshops and seminars by eminent personalities. We organise an inter-collegiate fest – ‘Resonance’- and an array of academic events including two national conferences every year, with the student community leading from the front. In addition to these, we offer certificate courses, a diploma programme in advanced English speaking skills, avenues in clubs and associations where the students realize and refine their creative, intellectual and critical bent of mind. The Department's vision and mission are aligned with the institution's vision and mission.

Introduction: The Department of Humanities at St. Claret College constantly innovates to offer its students the best learning experience. There are several innovative practices aimed at orienting students to research and enquiry through critical, analytical and interdisciplinary learning. The department ensures a balance of theoretical learning and practical experience which prepares the students to meet the challenges ahead of them.

Our leading best and innovative practices are described below:

Student Conferences: Since the academic year 2012-13 Student Conferences have become a regular annual event of the Department of Humanities. Students of Humanities from various colleges of the state present papers at the conference on a theme determined by the organizing committee. Several students of the Department of Humanities present papers at the event. The best papers are rewarded.

The students of the department take care of the organization of the event. The event orients the students towards research, inquiry and critical thinking, in addition to enhancing their organizational skills.

Practical Learning Avenues: The Department supplements classroom learning with hands-on learning experience to students. Journalism students visit print and television media houses for their experiential learning. They are also involved in writing, editing, and publishing in-house news bulletins. Photography and video shooting and editing are strong components of the Journalism programme. Similarly, students of Psychology visit mental health and rehabilitation centers to relate their theoretical learning to real-life situations. Through Humanities Club, students are provided with several opportunities to showcase their talent and bring out student creativity.

Outreach Activities: To realize the mission of SCC of forming socially just men and women who will advance a civilization of love and harmony, the Department of Humanities organizes several outreach programmes. These programmes include our students teaching the lesser privileged students in government schools, visiting orphanages and homes for the elderly, raising funds to provide for inmates in such places. These activities make our students sensitive to the questions of social justice and an equitable society. A recent extension activity organised by the department was a visit to the Need based India where in the faculty members and student volunteers not only donated ration but also engaged with them song and dance and few more activities. The initiative received boundless appreciation from various fronts, especially from the recipients of this programme, which made the experience all the more valuable and satisfying.
