

The CLARETINE

News Bulletin of St. Claret College, Bangalore; Vol. VI, No. 4, April 2015

Fr. Principal's Message

Share your sparkle wherever you are

Honoured dignitaries, graduates, ladies and gentlemen,

I can sense the excitement of you the two hundred and fifty young men and women in front of me. You are undeniably ready to fly. Upon the successful completion of your University exams, you will belong to the top privileged less than ten percent of this country's population of graduates. There are many people in this world who are just as intelligent, just as hard working, just as deserving of success, but for whatever reasons they did not have the opportunities that you had. And this certainly is your privilege. And I am as excited as any of you because we, the members of management, faculty and staff had some role to play in your lives as many of you testified here.

Being teachers, we are used to this kind of an event of bidding farewell to students batch after batch, year after year. But when we face the reality of students moving out, you whom we had seen walking into the college on a regular basis with all excitement and enthusiasm, you who used to be all eyes and ears in our classes, you who used to look up to us for inspiration; humanly speaking to let you go away is tough. We would love to have you around us, but we overcome those emotional attachments and say to ourselves we should let you go, because you have a world of endless possibilities out there.

The inspirational line we have adopted for this day is from the author of Best Seller, In the Garden of Thoughts, Dodinsky who said, "Share your sparkle wherever you are". That is my parting message for you. Countless number of times I have spoke about the core of Claretine education: education for transformation. The time you spent here, we believe has prepared you to be change agents wherever you are. Your sparkle is your character.

What I see before me is not merely a group of happy graduating students, I see massive potential. Potential that will not be tapped into except by yourself. Being "well-educated" only means that you have acquired credible, formal training in your discipline of choice. Being enlightened, on the other hand, means that you have further acquired knowledge that allows you to know how and where to make the best use of this education. The future of humanity does not depend on the educated, it rather hinges on the very small percentage of those educated who are also enlightened. I call on you to always count yourselves among the enlightened and to let your actions and decisions reflect this enlightenment. Show genuine concern for the world around you; be compassionate to the less privileged and in whatever decision you make, let the goodness of your conscience and the integrity of your character stand out.

Climb the mountain not to plant your flag but to embrace the challenge, enjoy the air, and behold the view. Climb it so that you can see the world, not just for the world to see you and admire. In this world, it is so easy to yield to its temptations for wealth, glory and fame. You will make all of us proud when we get to hear that a Claretine refused to yield that he/she stood the ground, held strongly on to the values of justice, truth, fairness, honesty and integrity.

Dear graduates, a good number of you found reputed companies to work in through the college placement and career guidance cell. Whether you continue your studies or take up a job, remain determined, resilient and hard working. Stay connected with your alma mater; be part of the alumni and continue to keep in touch with us whichever part of the world you will be in.

Dear Claretines, Good luck, thank you all for those eventful three years, I know you will continue to sparkle in the years ahead. God bless.

Fr. Thomas Thennady, CMF
